Where Is It?

About a year ago the legislature of New York appropriated money for new dormitories at teachers' colleges. This was done partly to alleviate the crowded conditions of post war enrollment, but more specifically, to correct the long-standing neglect of dormitory facilities for state colleges. Since that time, little or nothing has been heard from the state.

In the meantime, Albany, as well as ten other teachers' colleges have had to struggle with greatly increased enrollment. Every possible resource has been called upon, with students being placed in private homes, locker rooms and barracks. We are not alone in this problem, and probably have less to contend with than the majority of private colleges.

Disregarding the swollen post-war enrollment, however, you will find that the dorm facilities of the teachers' colleges of New York State have too long been neglected. If comparisons are needed, take a look at Pennsylvania's colleges and then look at Cortland or New Paltz. What help Albany has received with living quarters has come mainly from the alumni.

No, the problem of dormitory space is not a post-war problem, but one that has existed and shows every indication of growing considerably. Enrollment in this year's freshman class far exceeds that of either the Sophomore, Junior or Senior classes, containing the so-called war students. But while the state cuts through red tape and waits for prices to go down, the immediate needs of "tomorrow's teachers" are going sadly untended. As one graduate of State has so aptly put it, "You can't live in blueprints."

The state's cry for more teachers has been answered with the increased enrollment of this year's freshman classes . . . and the need for new dorms has been forcibly demonstrated. Unless the state takes some action on the new dorms, however, the need will cease to exist. You can't train teachers on the sidewalks.

Service . . .

In an attempt to coordinate the social service activities of State and eliminate duplication, five organizations on campus, SCA, Hillel, Newman, IGC and SMILES have combined their efforts in an "All State Community Service." In coordinating their activities they are attempting to enlarge the scope of their work.

This new Service organization will work with Clinton Square Settlement House, Booker T. Washington Center, Albany Home for Children, the YM.C.A. and city hospitals. Here is a chance to work with underprivileged children for the community . . . a chance to obtain experience, and to translate theory into action. Aside from this, it pays off in better relations with the city.

Each of the five organizations involved is opening a drive this week to recruit workers. You can sign with them. The people of Albany need your help. Don't let them down.

At The Crossroads

By JOHN JENNINGS
 Guest Columnist

Approach With Caution! Look In All Directions! Proceed With Care! The Life You Save May Be Your Own! These are the signs, familiar to those who travel the nation's highways, that warn of the impending dangers wherever one flow of traffic crosses another. Their value lies in the fact that they call to mind the necessity for individuals to manifest an active interest in their own and other's welfare.

As students, we are literally at the crossroads of one semester's activity on campus. The warnings, regarding our social and academic pursuits have been given, and now is the time to consider seriously our collegiate futures. This period marks the end of the initial adjustments that freshmen have had to make to a new, and in some cases, not so wonderful set of experiences. They are often subjected to a great deal of personal tragedy that goes unnoticed in our larger school circles, yet if they can withstand the pressure of these events the changes in their outlook better fit them for their status as adults. Sophomores are beginning to understand the full meaning of Rivalry and its effects upon individual associations. The Juniors are beginning to feel, and rightly so, their importance to the general scheme of things. Speaking as a Senior, I feel that a very important transformation has taken place in our ranks.

After almost four years of study and contact with a world of new ideas and personalities, it is right to expect this group to give evidence of maturity in judgments and behavior. Of all the four groups I think that their making adjustments to new situations, and clarifying their specific roles in student activities is most difficult, for their extended experiences have made them highly critical of all group proceedings. This is not in itself a disastrous condition, but one to be desired, if other values are not forgotten. The presence of some sort of irritant always makes for better administration, and this acts as a constant reminder of our own limitations and the need for cooperative student action.

In another respect we have reached the crossroads in relations with members of the faculty. On all levels we have evaluated the merits of certain teaching procedures, and in turn, our own class responses have been carefully catalogued. Our success or failure in college is largely determined by the effectiveness of these personal contacts.

It is imperative that we preserve our own personal integrity; however, this should not be done at the expense of others. The way to understanding is broad and is beset with many physical and spiritual obstacles. We may not agree on the methods or principles of living, but there is nothing in the field of human relations that should prevent our walking together in peace.

It possible for every man and woman student to make his or her choice after some deliberation. The exuberance and vitality exhibited during the pledge period must not die during four years of membership because of an unfortunate choice made in the first semester service. The potential pledges must be given more time. Pledging during the second semester at the earliest will help alleviate this problem. The fraternities and sororities must modify their pledge procedures to better correlate more with the attitudes that the pledges bring into the organization. It is not fair to expect the pledges of 1948 to abide by the traditional procedure of 1940 merely because such a procedure is traditional.

We can advance in yet another realm and one with more far-reaching consequences than what I have discussed up to this point. Fraternities and sororities on this campus must offer to each member something that will aid in making him a better teacher. Their existence is not justified, and further, their existence is intolerable if they either actively or passively perpetuate in us any attitudes that are contradictory to a healthy educational philosophy.

When the fraternities and sororities on this campus erect their requirements for membership along lines of religion or race, they are acting counter to the responsibility placed on us as future teachers. They are fostering in us, directly or indirectly, attitudes counter to this responsibility. Their existence is not justified if we are seeking to bring into the teaching profession a desire to improve it, to aid its growth and to grow with it.

They must continue to put their bidding and rushing procedure on a more rational basis thereby making

(Signed) Mike Capuano '49

Common-Stater

By BILL LYONS

The Common-Stater is given the widest latitude as author of this column, although his viewpoints do not necessarily reflect those of the STATE COLLEGE NEWS.

When I told someone the other day that I was going to write this column, they compared the event to Thanksgiving . . . something about the turkey not being the only thing that was stuffed. Here I go anyway, and like my predecessors, I invite all comments, criticisms and news from the column's readers.

The delegates to the Inter-Collegiate Association Conference have turned in their report to Student Council but the overall impression of that report is worth mentioning. That is, when compared to the other colleges, Albany can be proud of its position. Regardless of the grippers and detractors in our student body, we make a pretty fine showing as regards student government, academic standards, curriculum, and just plain know-how of organization. Students from some of the other schools can't imagine a student organization without faculty intervention. And we may kid about our Dooleys and Langseys with their "Article 5, section 6 readings" at our business meetings but when you see a meeting that doesn't conform to any set procedure, you can appreciate efficiency. Sure we have our faults, but looking back we can see progress and we'll make more as time goes by. The next time that you hear someone griping, ask yourself how much that person has done to better things here at State. You'll be surprised at the conclusions.

One of our weak spots is our Student-Faculty relations . . . they're on a book-basis with little social activity. Now a suggestion for their betterment comes from the faculty itself. They have suggested a faculty talent show and from the reports there seems to be a good deal of talent among them. Such a show will have a second contribution. Any profits derived will be donated to the War Memorial that the student body decides on. Nothing definite yet, but it sounds like a fine idea.

"Hot Rock Idea": Why not put blocks under the "shorty" lockers in the men's locker room. They would be appreciated by the members of the Back Benders Brotherhood who occupy these lockers.

There was a movement among sororities and fraternities to move the pledging period into the second semester. Its supporters felt that such a change would eliminate much of the confusion among the prospective pledgees and would also give the organization a better opportunity to judge the freshman. What happened to it and what are the arguments against such a move?

The cafeteria plan that flopped (not enough subscribers) and has been resurrected sounded like a good one. One of the reasons given for its failure was that some students did not want to "be themselves up for institution food." That may be, but there is also an adverse feeling toward the cafeteria brought on by its prices and by the amounts and quality of its food. Whether this attitude is founded or not, possibly more knowledge as to how the suggested plan will be set up would ease many minds and bring in more customers.

Buy 'em, wrap 'em, and drop 'em. We're speaking of the gifts for the kids at the Albany Home. On Monday, boxes will be put in lower Draper for receiving these gifts but that's not all for you to do. Make plans to attend the Christmas party at the Home on Thursday, December 16. Any inconvenience that you may have will be amply rewarded by the happiness that you can give to some youngster.

Experts Advise College Students To Give Exams To Take It Easy While Driving

In order to make college students more conscious of accident prevention over Christmas vacation, the Lumbermans Mutual Casualty Company, in cooperation with the National Safety Council is sponsoring a safety drive during that period. In conjunction with this, an editorial contest is being sponsored at the same time.

Much literature has arrived at the NEWS office during the past week, emphasizing the need for such a campaign. One survey cited, made by the chief psychologist of Lumbermans Mutual Casualty Company, involves 100 motorists who were psychologically studied after their arrest for a traffic violation. The following results were obtained: "One driver was insane and one was an active epileptic. Three were handicapped physically, six had serious hearing defects and 18 had vision defects."

In addition, the psychologists found the following facts about the drivers: anti-social in three instances; immature in 14; overly excited in 26; unreliable in 28; egotistic in 31; nervous in 41; inferior intelligence in 42; little sense of responsibility in 45; alcoholic in 46; overly suggestible in 48; and emotionally unstable and impulsive in 57."

Another suggestion for a picture this time, is to "get some of the co-eds to pose, with their faces all smeared with lipstick to look like cuts. This is to dramatize the fact that they enjoy dating, but hope their holiday escorts won't smash them up in an automobile accident."

To switch to plain facts which should impress every one of us who drives, Mr. Franklin M. Kreml, Director of the Northwestern University Traffic Division, International Association of Chiefs of Police states that of all persons involved in fatal accidents, before the war, the rate for drivers under 20 years of age was 39% higher than average, and for persons between 20 and 24 years old was 24%. Higher. Evidence shows that these figures still hold today. Mr. Kreml says in a letter addressed to the college-age driver: "Actually, persons of college

ALL US PEOPLE: Did you ever play basketball in high school, Mr. O'Brien?

TOM O'BRIEN: Yes... I uh... well...

US: You have quite a reputation as a writer, Mr. O'Brien. Just what type of literature do you write?

O'BRIEN: (Blushing) Aw-w-w-w...

US: Mr. O'Brien, you're a sterling basketball player, and you consistently score in double figures. To what do you attribute your success?

O'BRIEN: (Slightly redder) Oh, well, not that good... you see...

"O'Blie," I soon discovered, is a little bit modest. His friends, though, weren't so short on words, and praised him to the skies. Some quotes:

"O'Blie" is one of our standout 'ham-and-egggers.' He's also a charter member of the club."

"When he went to high school he was one of the best players on the basketball team; literally a star!"

Born In Albany

Tom is lucky enough to be a native of this area. He was born in Albany, and went to Van Rensselaer High School. While there he started in Basketball, Baseball, Soccer, was elected president of the Sophomore Class, and was editor-in-chief of the "Oracle" school literary magazine.

He went into the Navy soon after graduation in 1944. "I went to boot at Sampson, and then to quartermaster school at the Gulfport N.T.S. I made the basketball team there, but the other guys were so good that the only thing I did was to blow up the basketballs once in a while."

"Then," I asked, "you used to dish out wrong sized uniforms over the counter?"

"NO! NO! NO!" he shouted. "A quartermaster in the Navy isn't the same as in the Army. I learned Navigation and signaling, and worked on the ship's bridge."

Well, you learn something new every day.

Discharged in 1946

Discharged in the spring of 1946, Tom came to State the following September, spending the summer doing, as he called it, "absolutely nothing."

He has been on the starting varsity five ever since he came, and this year will probably be one of the outstanding players on the team, due to his experience.

Team Better This Year

"The team will be better this year—but we have a tougher and longer schedule. The first five games will probably be the toughest that we'll have. We have a good schedule though. It's well balanced, but it is good for a team to face some superior teams."

Here at State, Tom is exceptionally well known for his writing. A short story in last year's "Primer" aroused much favorable comment. One professor is known to have uttered:

"I don't care who is in my creative writing class next semester, as long as one is Tom O'Brien."

Especially commendable, and sadly lacking this year, are O'Brie's guest columns in the NEWS. A clever satirist, Tom's comments on school problems generally brought immediate action.

Rensselaer's loss is Albany's gain—watch for him this Friday night.

State Meets Maritime Tonight, Willimantic Tomorrow In Page Faces Plattsburg On Wednesday

Scrimmages With RPI Spark Practice Sessions

A tall, rangy Maritime Academy team that figures to cause the State courtmen plenty of trouble will invade Page Hall tonight for a basketball bill that promises to supply plenty of thrills and spills.

Out to avenge last year's loss to the same Mariners, the "Peds" will field a fast, but sadly short team. Maritime will bring back almost the same tall team as last year's, which used a powerful double pivot, outscoring State, 63-40. The Jayvees will play the Blanchard Post in the preliminary at 7 p. m.

Scrimmaged RPI

As a warm up for tonight's game the Varsity went into a series of tough scrimmages against RPI's Varsity and finished with a scrimmage game against the J.V. last Wednesday night.

When the scrimmage was over the Varsity and J.V. had been put through a thorough workout. Coach Hathaway, who seemed pleased with the scoring punch of the team, had the Varsity work on passing and plays.

Besides last year's returning players, Marzello, O'Brien, George, Persh, and Lansky, several newcomers looked very promising. Among these are Bob Brown, Ed Matthew, Paul Carter, Jim Warden and Jim Juisto.

Schick, Frail Coach J.V.'s

The J.V.'s, under Walt Schick and Charley Frail, seem to have a well rounded team with both height and speed. They used a zone defense against the Varsity and gave them a tough time during the first half.

Tomorrow night Willimantic State Teachers come in to start a home and home series with State. New to the schedule this year, Willimantic fields one of the better Teachers' College teams in the East. The prelin, also at 7 p. m., pits the J.V. against A.B.C.

To complete a crowded hoop bill, a game with Plattsburg State Teachers' College is scheduled for Wednesday night. Traditional rivals, Albany and Plattsburg split even in two games last season.

VDZ, Potter, KB Win In Volleyball

As the short Volleyball season drew toward a close, Monday night saw three two-game victories for VanDerzee, Potter and KB in the evening tilts in the Page Hall gym.

The first contest was staged between VanDerzee Hall and Bayles Hall Annex. The State Street boys whipped right through Ontario by taking two straight, 15-4 and 15-3.

The second game, which was to be played between the Angels and the Mitey Mites was forfeited.

In the third encounter of the evening a Faculty team, walloped in the first game, 15-2, came back to tighten up the second game, only to lose by the score of 15-9.

KB faced and downed SLS in the win out of the evening. Both these games were very close and showed prolonged volleying. KB eked out the first, coming from behind, 15-13 and had an even tougher battle in the second when they overcame a five-point disadvantage to win 18-16.

More games are planned to round out the schedule for this year's league.

Sophs Trip Frosh, 14-0

Playing in mud up to their knees the class of '51 pushed over a 14-0 win out of the class of '52 to add to their rivalry victories.

After an all day rain on Friday the 19th, Pace Field turned into a bucket of mud which was a handicap to both teams. Neither team could do much on the ground and thus they took to passing, and it was the more accurate passing of the Sophs that gave them their victory.

Second Half Good

The game turned into a thrilling contest during the second half as the Frosh tried several long passes and completed a few of them to advance deep into Greenly territory.

However, the game had its more amusing moments when runners stepped into one of the mud-traps and were grounded without being tagged by the opposition.

Monroe, State's Football Expert

attended the MAA Pep Rally, Wednesday night in the Page Hall gym. The student team from Van Derzee Hall trounced a picked faculty six in three volleyball games during the night's activities.

The male members of the club will substitute for the cheerleaders for Friday and Saturday's games.

They promise to exhibit skill in tumbling to compensate for the temporary loss of the cheerleading squad, which the State routers witnessed in action on Wednesday night.

Austin Monroe emerged as State's top football expert of the week. In the last football poll for this year Monroe picked eleven out of twelve correctly. The entire poll was very close and Fran Andreone who was last week's winner placed a close second. The Sports Department intends to conduct another poll for the winter months. Monroe's scores are as follows:

- Yale 7, Harvard 14. Syracuse 7, Columbia 28. Michigan 34, Ohio State 7. Northwestern 28, Illinois 7. Stanford 7, California 21. Oregon 14, Oregon State 0. Oklahoma 34, Kansas 0. SMU 21, Baylor 7. North Carolina 14, Duke 13. Penn State 21, Pittsburgh 0. Princeton 6, Dartmouth 7. Tulsa 14, Arkansas 42.

DeGarmo Judges Potatoes, Competes In National Contest

Farmers are not the only ones to judge potatoes. Students do it, too. In fact, one of State's students is quite superior at it. Lindley DeGarmo '50, came out first in last year's contest for prize potato judges, and fifth in this year's contest.

He doesn't just judge spuds, though. He can actually tell you, just from glancing at the eyes of the potato, that is whether that particular apple of the ground is a sharp Long Islander, or whether it is native Californian.

DeGarmo is now taking part in a national contest for judging potatoes, that is whether the 4-H club, you know, had a hunger, horror, and hollandaise. That's where he got his learning.

Classes To Sing For Rivalry Points During Assembly

Today's assembly will consist of the annual Rivalry Sing between the freshman and Sophomore classes. Also slated for the program are nominations for delegates to the Eastern States Association Conference, and an announcement concerning the Myskania Christmas Party.

The annual Rivalry Sing between the freshmen and the Sophomores will take place this morning. Each class will sing a class fight song, an original class alma mater, and a song to the rival class.

The procedure for seating for the sing has been announced by Perry Pless '49, Grand Marshal. The Sophomores and Juniors in the balcony will remain in their seats. The freshmen in the left hand section (facing the stage) will remain seated until all the other freshmen are out. The fresh in the section on the right will move immediately to the center section, so that the center section will contain both groups, leaving the right section vacant, so the Juniors can move to their new seats. The center section will leave, one row at a time, and go down the right stair case to the Junior section downstairs. The Juniors will move to their right and go up the stairway nearest Richardson Hall to the section left empty by the freshmen. After all the Juniors have left their seats, the seniors will move to their right and up the same stair case to fill the left section, which will be emptied by the last freshmen.

A report will also be given on the recent ICA conference, held at Brockport by members of the State delegation. Nominations for delegates to the Eastern States Association meeting will also take place.

Myskania Will Hold Annual Xmas Party

Thursday night, Myskania will hold its annual Christmas party at the Albany Home for Children in the Home's Chapel, according to Catherine Donnelly '49, Chairman of Myskania.

Millard Smith '49, will play Santa Claus at the younger children's party, which will be held from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m., and Ronald Rockhill '51, will be Santa at the older children's party at 7 p.m. Ellen Fay '49, the Good Fairy on Station WROW, will portray the Good Fairy for the youngsters in the afternoon.

A collection will be taken up in assembly today to help defray the expenses of food and decorations. Cartons for all classes have been placed in lower Draper Hall, and Miss Donnelly urges all students to buy their gifts as soon as possible. She also asks that sorority members attend the Christmas party before going to their group house affairs.

The Commuters' Club Christmas Party will be held in the Commons tomorrow, from 8 to 12 p. m., according to Chairman Paul LeBrun '49. Refreshments, Paul LeBrun '49, Mitchell Burkosky '52, and Paul Wilbur, Sophomores. The evening will include dancing, entertainment and refreshments.

The committees for the affair include: Entertainment, Helen Callahan '49; Refreshments, Paul LeBrun '49; Tickets, Mary McGuire '52. Admission will be twenty-five cents and everyone is invited to attend.

'Snowy Christmas' Will Be Theme For Decorations

Co-Chairmen Announce Completion Of Plans For All-College Affair

HELEN COOK, President, Inter-Sorority Council

Tonight the doors of the Aurania Club will open for the annual Christmas Ball which is sponsored by Inter-Fraternity-Inter-Sorority Council. Fred Clute and his orchestra will furnish the music from 9 p. m. until 1 a. m., according to Co-Chairmen Helen Cook and Richard Zeller, Seniors.

The Aurania Club will be decorated in a theme fitting to the season of the year. Everson Kimb '49, Chairman of the Decoration Committee, has made plans for decorations for the effect of a snowy Christmas.

Open To All Students

Miss Cook and Zeller wish to remind students that the ball is not restricted to sorority and fraternity members. Any student and his guest may attend. They also wish to explain the presentation of a smaller dance this year. Last year a name orchestra was hired and the Christmas Ball was held in a large place. However, Inter-Fraternity-Inter-Sorority Council lost money because attendance was not large enough. This year the Council wishes to present a smaller dance and hopes to remain financially in the black.

Tickets are still on sale at the booth at the door of the Commons. Persons attending the ball will be able to purchase tickets at the door for $3.00 per bid.

List Committee Heads

Other committee heads are: Mary Jane Peris, Orchestra; Abraham Trop, Place; Jean Tolman, Bids; Dolores Stocker, Programs; Marvin Wayne, Chaperones; Thomas Lisker '49, Concession; and Earl Jones '50, Publicity.
