MEMORANDUM TO NEWS EDITORS:

Special arrangements are being made to accommodate representatives of the news media planning to cover our 125th annual commencement program here on Sunday, June 8. Parking facilities will be available for you at the Dutch Quadrangle parking lot, at the southwest side of the campus. Additionally, there will be a number of seats reserved for your convenience. The press section will be at the front of section 1 in Tent A. (If inside, at the north side of the platform.)

Enclosed with this memorandum is a list of picture possibilities and a time schedule of places and events. To be mailed in Thursday, June 5, will be the list of graduates, a summary article marked hold for release until Sunday, June 8, 11 a.m., and, hopefully, excerpts from Mr. Udall's address.

This year we will not keep the Office of Community Relations open but rather, for your convenience, we will use the information desk at the Campus Center, telephones 457-6925 and 457-6926. H. David Van Dyck, assistant to the president for community relations, and I will be on hand to assist during the commencement program.

Your letting me know by Friday what coverage you are planning will be helpful. Enclosed are press badges for photographers to aid security in keeping area clear near speakers' platform.

Nathalie E. Lampman

At the 125th annual commencement exercises Sunday morning (June 8) at State University of New York at Albany, an estimated 1938 degrees will be conferred by President Evan R. Collins. The principal speaker will be Stewart L. Udall, former Secretary of the Interior. His subject will be "The Value Revolution: Changing America's Priorities."

The graduating class is the largest in the history of the university. Bachelor degrees will be awarded to 1242 men and women, an increase of 172 over last year's total. Eight hundred four will receive bachelor of arts degrees and 708, bachelor of science degrees.

Master degrees will be awarded to 675 candidates. At the 1968 commencement, the total was 815. This year's master's degrees include arts, 205; science, 266; social work, 24; public administration, 44; business administration, 34; and library science, 102.

Doctoral degrees will be conferred on 21 candidates, an increase of six over the number awarded last year. They include 15 doctor of education degrees and 6 doctor of philosophy degrees.

Among those who will receive bachelor and master degrees are 39 international students from 19 countries. In the Class of 1969 are 256 honor students. One hundred eighty-eight will be graduated cum laude; 61, magna cum laude; and 7, summa cum laude. Seven of the honor graduates have been designated as graduating with honors in their major field and two, with high honors in their major field.

The commencement ceremony will take place at the Campus Center Mall, beginning at 10 o'clock. Prior to the program, the academic procession will move from the Campus Center to the mall, beginning at 9:25.

The traditional torchlight ceremony will be held Saturday evening at the ceremonial entrance to the academic podium. It begins at 9 o'clock. At 10 o'clock there will be a reception for parents and seniors at the Campus Center.

HOLD FOR RELEASE UNTIL
11 A.M. SUNDAY, JUNE 8

(In the event of inclement weather, the program will take place in the physical education building. The overflow audience, unable to be accommodated in the gymnasium, can view the exercises in adjacent rooms via closed circuit television.)

Stewart L. Udall, former Secretary of the Interior, in a commencement address at State University of New York at Albany this morning, called upon Americans "to recognize the worth of the value revolution and to encourage it toward constructive channels." He continued, "It can have a profound and beneficial influence on our future if it causes us to renew our lives, revise our institutions, and reassess our directions and purposes."

Mr. Udall, who served during the administrations of Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, spoke to an audience of several thousand persons seated at the Campus Center Mall for the 125th annual commencement program of the university. He said, "I believe that the value revolution, as best exemplified by the protests of the blacks towards the indignities of daily life, and by the widespread student antagonisms toward the standards of 'the establishment', may bring about a far-reaching shift in those ideas and attitudes that ultimately shape the nation. In fact, we are already engaged in the most vital sorting out of values since the season of 1776."

The former Cabinet officer added that the value revolution "may transform our lives." Said Mr. Udall, "Those preoccupied with the selfish scramble for easy wealth, unmerited advantage, and personal ease, should become accustomed to the well-aimed arrows of those who have contempt for these aspects of American life." He described the revolution as "changing America's priorities."

(NOTE TO EDITORS: Enclosed are other excerpts from Mr. Udall's address).

Degrees conferred by Dr. Evan R. Collins, president of the university, included 1242 bachelor degrees and 696 graduate degrees. Of the Class of 1969, 256 are honor graduates. One hundred eighty-eight were graduated cum laude; 61, magna cum laude; and seven, summa cum laude.

Presentations of candidates for degrees were made by Dr. Allan A. Kuusisto, vice president for academic affairs; Dr. John E. Carlock, acting dean, School of Business; Dr. O. William Perlmutter, dean, College of Arts and sciences; Dr. John J. Farley, dean, School of Library Science; Fred J. Tickner, dean, Graduate School of Public Affairs; Dr. Charles T. O'Reilly, dean, School of Social Welfare; and Dr. Randolph S. Gardner, dean, School of Education.

Twenty-one doctoral degrees and 675 master degrees were awarded. They included master of arts, 205; master of science, 266; master of business administration, 34; master of library science, 102; master of social work, 24; master of public administration, 44; doctor of philosophy, six; and doctor of education, 15.

The colorful academic procession prior to the program moved from the Campus Center building to the adjacent mall while the University Band played the processional, Vaughn Williams' "Sine Nomine". Following the singing of "America, the Beautiful", the invocation was given by Rev. Paul R. Smith. After the conferring of degrees and the singing of the university Alma Mater, the benediction was pronounced by Rabbi Alvin S. Roth. The formal program was concluded with the singing of the National Anthem and the recessional, Prokofiev's, "Athletic Festival March."

(Enclosed are lists of degree recipients and honor graduates).

Excerpts from Commencement
Address by Stewart L. Udall at State University of
New York at Albany

NOT TO BE RELEASED BEFORE

SUNDAY, JUNE 8, 1969, 11 a.m.

"The Value Revolution: Changing America's Priorities"

"I believe that the value revolution is best exemplified by the protests of the blacks towards the indignities of daily life, and by the widespread student antagonisms toward the standards of 'the establishment' may bring about a far-reaching shift in those ideas and attitudes that ultimately shape the nation. In fact, we are already engaged in the most vital sorting out of values since the season of 1776. Even our search for the roots of failure of the time of the Great Depression was more a questioning of the responsibility of the economic system than a radical search for the elements of thorough-going social renewal.

"This value revolution which is upon us may transform our lives. Those preoccupied with the selfish scramble for easy wealth, unmerited advantage, and personal ease, should become accustomed to the well-aimed arrows of those who have contempt for these aspects of American life. The value-doubters will continue to scorn our efforts to define the national well-being solely by Gross National Product, flat-car loadings, auto production, or the sufficiency of military preparedness. They want to assess (and they are entitled to raise the issue) what that production is; what the flat cars contain; what the relevance of individual wheels is to our mass transportation needs; how humanism fits into what can never again be a simple logistical measure of preparedness.

"The time has come to recognize the worth of the value revolution and to encourage it toward constructive channels. It can have a profound and beneficial influence on our future if it causes us to renew our lives, revise our institutions, and reassess our directions and purposes."

TRIPLETS GRADUATE - Triplet sisters are in the graduating class at State University of New York at Albany. They are (l. to r.) Ellen, Nancy, and Lynn Nudelman of Valley Stream, Long Island. Ellen, who majored in mathematics and is an honor graduate, plans to teach at Woodmere Junior High School next year. Nancy, who is planning a summer wedding, also majored in mathematics. This fall Lynn, a Spanish major at SUNYA, will attend graduate school at Queens College. The sisters are shown in front of the Carillon Tower on the university center's campus. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. Martin Nudelman of 1040 Rosedale Road, Valley Stream, and graduates of Valley Stream South High School.

Herbert A. Tonne, professor of business education at State University of New York at Albany, has prepared a booklet, "Guidelines in Business Education 1969", with the assistance of two conference groups of teachers, supervisors, and teacher educators in business education. The preparation was made possible through a grant from the Bureau of Occupational Education Research, New York State Education Department.

The study groups met at SUNYA to establish guidelines for the conduct of business education in the schools of the state. In his forward, Professor Tonne states that it is hoped that "these guidelines will lead to better understanding of business education, and to better programs for preparing youth to work in business and use the goods and services of the American business and economic system"

According to the conference groups, "the goal or purpose of business education is to provide learners with the skills and broader competencies needed to obtain an initial job and, later, to qualify for promotion. It is recognized that job skills by themselves do not provide the total education needed for success on the job. Emphasis must also be given to related job skills, attitudes, and competencies in the fundamental processes." The booklet is a recent publication of the Albany university.

Professor Tonne holds a Bachelor of Philosophy from the University of Chicago. His graduate degrees are from New York University where he earned his doctorate.

Dr. Tonne is the author of several texts which have become standards in the field. His Principles of Business Education is considered an authoritative text. Professor Tonne is senior author (with Pephan and Freeman) in producing the third edition of Methods of Teaching Business Subjects. In 1966, Professor Tonne was elected president of the National Business Education Association. He received the Gregg Award in Business Education in 1962. The award is presented annually to an individual considered to be an outstanding business educator in the United States.

Henry G. Kuivila, professor of chemistry at State University of New York at Albany, has been granted $30,500- by the National Science Foundation for his research entitled, "Organic and Organotin Free Radicals." The NSF grant is used for supplies and for the support of a research assistant. John D. Kennedy, of England, is the post-doctoral research associate assisting Dr. Kuivila.

Dr. Kuivila, also applied for and was awarded a $20,800- research instrument grant for the SUNYA chemistry department by NSF. The money, to be matched by the university, is to be used for the purchase of specialized instruments to enable the measurement of fast chemical reactions in various environments.

Prior to coming to SUNYA, Dr. Kuivila taught chemistry at the University of New Hampshire. He received his Bachelor of Science in chemistry from Ohio State University and his doctorate of chemistry from Harvard University.

Mauritz Johnson, professor of education at State University of New York at Albany, has been awarded a grant for $9,820 by the U.S. Office of Education. The grant will be used to support the development of instructional program units of categorical reasoning in both verbal and symbolic format. Professor Johnson's research will focus on how different formats cause variance in the learning experience.

Prior to coming to SUNYA in 1968, Dr. Johnson was dean of the School of Education and head of the department of education at Cornell. He received his bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from SUNYA and his doctorate from Cornell University.

American Secondary Schools, published in 1965, by Harcourt, Brace, and World is Professor Johnson's most recent book. He also co-authored Junior High School Guidance and The Teacher in Curriculum Making as well as writing over forty articles and reviews for a variety of publications.

Dr. Johnson served as president and program chairman for the Educational Research Association of New York State. In 1966, he visited Sweden and England on an International Study Award from the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Francis J. Norton, research professor of physics at State University of New York at Albany, has received an extension on his grant from the National Air Pollution Control Administration, U.S. Public Health Service. It is the fourth time, since 1965, that the PHS has awarded Dr. Norton's grant for his study of the "Permeation Rates of Tracer Gases Through Polymers." The present extension will be effective until 1972. Dr. Norton will receive $18,176 of the sum this year.

The research grant is to support the continuation and extension of Dr. Norton's evaluation of techniques and equipment to be used in the study of air mass movement and tracing the course of air pollutants on leaving a source. Dr. Norton will continue to study the absorption of gases by small particles and polymer materials.

Dr. Norton received his bachelor or arts and doctoral degrees from Yale University. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. In 1953 he was awarded the Meyer Award by the American Ceramic Society for research on "Helium Diffusion Through Glass".

Shirley M. Kane, director of the Memorial School of Nursing, Albany, has been appointed assistant dean of the School of Nursing, State University of New York at Albany, and assistant professor of nursing at the school. Her appointments become effective August 28.

Miss Kane, who has served as director of Memorial School of Nursing since 1960, formerly was an instructor there for three years. She has been active in the New York State League for Nursing for the past 15 years, and currently is serving as a member of the structure committee.

Miss Kane is a director of the Hudson Valley League for Nursing which she served as president for two years. She is a former chairman of the league's committee on needs and facilities for nursing education in the Hudson Valley League for Nursing area. In 1968 she was appointed a member of the board of directors of the Albany Training School for Practical Nursing and for two years was a member of the steering committee of the Council of Directors of Diploma Programs in New York State. Presently she is a member of the education committee of the New York State Nurses Association.

Miss Kane received her nursing diploma from the Memorial School of Nursing and a Bachelor of Science from Russell Sage College, Troy. She completed graduate work at Teacher's College, Columbia University, where she received a Master of Arts in administration of pre-service education programs in nursing. She has served on the nursing staff of Memorial Hospital as a charge nurse and as supervisor.

An associate professor of chemistry at State University of New York at Albany, Dr. William D. Closson, has received a grant of $18,858 for continuation of his study, "The Cleavage of Sulfonyl with Anion Radicals." Sponsor of the research is the National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases of the U. S. Public Health Service, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The grant is for one year ending May 31, 1970. Dr. Closson notes that sulfonyl derivatives are important to the average man through the use of some of them in "sulfa drugs" and also through their use as intermediates in the synthesis of peptides, molecules similar to, and sometimes identical with, the small protein molecules in nature.

Dr. Closson was a recipient of a two-year Alfred P. Sloan Foundation fellowship for basic research last year. He was among 73 scientists at 41 colleges and universities selected from some 500 nominations. The 35-year old educator, who came to Albany in 1966, holds degrees from Wayne State University and the University of Wisconsin.

ARENA SUMMER THEATRE
John G. Deanehan
PAC 354, Tel. 457-7535

The Arena Theatre of State University of New York at Albany will open its summer schedule of shows with a traditionally staged production of a Victorian thriller, "Angel Street," on July 9 through the 12, in the Studio Theatre of the university's new Performing Arts Center.

The spine-tingling English melodrama was first presented under the title, "Gas Light," in 1938. After its successful American run, with Vincent Price, "Angel Street" was made into a film starring Charles Boyer.

The Arena cast will include such familiar faces to past Arena fans as Joan Fisher, Phil Arian, and Graham Zeh. Tickets are available from the Arena box office, 457-8606, in the main lobby of the Performing Arts Center.

An exhibit of the designs of seventeen young American scenic designers will accompany the remaining productions of the Arena Theatre. The work of young theatre artists represents the coming generation in the difficult and exciting field of stage design.

Arena Theatre will present a children's show, "Professor Filarsky's Miraculous Invention" on July 16-19, "The Entertainer" on July 23 to 26, and a double bill of "Acts Without Words" and "In His Own Write" on July 30 to August 2.

Individual show and season tickets may be reserved at the box office or by mail. The box office hours are Monday to Friday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday from noon to 2 p.m. and on the evenings of performance from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

Charles T. O'Reilly, dean of the School of Social Welfare, State University of New York at Albany, has been appointed acting vice president for academic affairs. Dean O'Reilly will fill the position now held by Allan A. Kuusisto who becomes acting president of the university July 1, filling the office held for 20 years by Evan R. Collins. A search for a permanent successor to Dr. Collins is continuing.

The appointment of Dr. O'Reilly was approved Wednesday by the Board of Trustees of State University of New York. The dean, who joined the Albany university faculty last year, holds degrees from Loyola University, Chicago, where he received his master of social work degree, and from the University of Notre Dame where he earned his doctorate in sociology. He also attended Ohio State University, the Catholic University of Milan, Italy, and Columbia University.

Dr. O'Reilly received a Fulbright fellowship to study social psychology and child welfare in Italy in 1949-50 and in 1958-59 he was an exchange professor in Italy lecturing at Italian schools of social work. Before becoming dean and professor of social work at State University at Albany, Dr. O'Reilly was on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin School of Social Work.

Several other appointments at the university also were approved by the trustees. William S. Rooney, who joined the faculty at the School of Social Welfare in 1965, has been named acting dean of the school. Dr. Rooney, who received his doctorate in social welfare from Western Reserve University, was honored by that institution on its fiftieth anniversary in recognition of his "outstanding achievement and service in the field of social welfare."

James M. Lewis, who has been assistant to the president since 1961, was named assistant dean of the College of General Studies. In 1958 he came to the university where he formerly taught speech. He completed his undergraduate and graduate studies at Ohio State University.

Edgar B. Schick will be acting assistant to the president. Dr. Schick has spent the past year at the university under the academic administrative internship program of the American Council on Education. He formerly was assistant professor of German at State University of New York at Binghamton, and holds degrees from Muhlenberg College and from Rutgers University.

Fred J. Tickner, dean of the Graduate School of Public Affairs, was granted a waiver of mandatory retirement until August 31, 1971. He joined the GSPA faculty in 1962, and served as acting dean for a year before being appointed dean in 1968.

Thomas H. MacGregor, professor of mathematics State University of New York at Albany, has been given a continuation of his National Science Foundation grant for research in "Topics in Complex and Functional Analysis." The grant, which will expire at the end of May 1970, is for $34,600.

The object of Dr. MacGregor's research is to study some of the important problems involving the basic concepts in Banach space theory that are of a geometric nature and seem to be closely related.

Dr. MacGregor joined the Albany faculty in 1967. He previously taught at the University of Pennsylvania, South College of Rutgers University, and Lafayette College. The mathematician holds degrees from Lafayette and Pennsylvania.

The Albany educator twice previously has received NSF research grants. He is a member of the American Mathematical Society and of the Mathematical Association of America.

Dr. Charles F. Stokes, chairman of the department of music, State University of New York at Albany since 1944, will be on sabbatical during the 1969-70 academic year. Laurence J. Farrell, assistant professor of music, will assume the duties of acting department chairman September 1 and a search committee will seek a permanent chairman for September 1970.

Dr. Stokes will return to the university next year to teach, but will not resume his post as chairman. During his leave, he will be working both on personal research projects and projects for the department. He will be on campus in the fall, working on three department projects.

In the spring, Dr. Stokes will be at the University of Guadalajara, Mexico, where Albany has a regular semester program. He will concern himself with the music program there and with matters relating to Albany's Center for Inter-American Studies. He also hopes to perform with the City of Guadalajara Symphony Orchestra.

The search committee for Dr. Stokes' successor will be chaired by Mr. Farrell. Other music department faculty serving on the committee include Joel A. Chadabe and R. Findlay Cockrell, both assistant professors, and William L. Hudson and Daniel M. Nimetz, associate professors. Dr. Robert D. Allen, chairman, department of biology, also will be on the committee and students will be named to the committee in the fall.

Mr. Farrell joined the Albany faculty in 1963, after three years as a teacher at the Eastman School of Music. He holds B.S. and M. A. degrees from New York University and presently is writing his doctoral thesis for Eastman. He also has studied piano, composition, music theory, and choral conducting with private instructors.

Dr. Stokes came to Albany 25 years ago from Cincinnati, where he had been director of music at the Cincinnati Conservatory. The violinist holds degrees from the Conservatory and from the University of Cincinnati. He was president of the Albany Symphony, 1957-58, and currently plays first chair viola. He also has played innumerable concerts with orchestras and chamber groups.

Dr. Richardson L. Rice, professor of social welfare, State University of New York at Albany, will leave next week (June 29) for 13 months in Germany as an accompanying professor in the State University one-year program at the University of Wurzburg. The program is co-sponsored by the State University at Albany and the State University College at Oneonta.

A total of 29 students, including 16 from SUNYA and nine from Oneonta, will spend the first two months at Goethe Institute, Bavaria, where they will engage in intensive language study. The group then will proceed to Wurzburg for a pre-session prior to the opening of the fall term. The program is scheduled through the middle of July 1970.

Most of the Albany students are German majors, while the Oneonta representatives are majoring in mathematics and political science. During their year at Wurzburg, the American students will compete with the regular student body and will participate in extracurricular, cultural, and social activities as well. They may live with German families and dine at university facilities. Special supplementary assistance from the Wurzburg faculty will be available to the students, if necessary.

In addition to teaching several courses at Wurzburg, Dr. Rice plans to do independent research in two major areas of child welfare, while in Germany. He intends to study German schools of social work, particularly noting their curriculum in child welfare. His second area of research will be field studies of the functioning of children's agencies and institutions. He hopes to determine something about the kinds of responsibilities carried by the workers. Dr. Rice will use the information to help implement the curriculum pending for Albany both in graduate and undergraduate courses.

Dr. Rice came to Albany in 1964 as dean of the newly-created School of Social Welfare, a post he resigned in September 1968 to involve himself more fully in teaching and investigation. Previously, he served more than three years as United Nations advisor for family and child welfare to Egypt's Ministry of Social Affairs. He holds degrees from Wooster (Ohio) College and Boston University. Dr. Rice has attended several International Conferences on Social Welfare, most recently in Helsinki, Finland last July.

The Art Gallery, State University of New York at Albany, will reopen for the summer season July 1. An exhibition entitled "Twenty Representational Painters" will occupy the gallery's main floor.

"Twenty Representational Painters" was organized by artist George Wexler of the art faculty, State University College at New Paltz. Among the painters represented are Fairfield Porter, Philip Perlstein, Lennart Anderson, Jane Freulich, Leland Bell, and Mr. Wexler.

The spring retrospective of photography by Joseph Alper will be continued throughout the summer session in the Gallery Lounge. The late Mr. Alper was a faculty member at Albany and widely known for his photographs of musicians and architectural subjects.

"Wall Hangings," an exhibit of contemporary weaving being circulated by the Museum of Modern Art, will be installed on the second floor of the gallery. The weavers represented in "Wall Hangings" are from eight countries and share a concern with extending the formal techniques of weaving to create works of art. Unusual color, and adventurous use of traditional materials along with an interest in sculptural effects distinguish these works from traditional weaving with utilitarian purpose.

"Protest Paintings" by Edward Cowley will occupy the west galleries. This exhibit is an indoor version of Mr. Cowley's 1969 Hillside Show in Altamont, New York. The large paintings take a good natured swipe at contemporary culture and the smallest paintings - all sour lemons - speak for themselves.

All of the above exhibitions will be in the Art Gallery until August 17.

For further information call Mrs. Charles M. Liddle, 457-3375.

Harry W. Paige, who received his Ph.D. in English from State University of New York at Albany in 1967, has published "Songs of the Teton Sioux" (Westernlore Press, Los Angeles). The book is one of the Great West and Indian Series XXXIX.

The work represents the first literary study of the oral expression of the Sioux and the Plains Indians. Dr. Paige, now of the department of humanities at Clarkson College of Technology, spent considerable time working with the Sioux. His book is a penetrating look at the ritual and mystery of the Sioux' songs, many of which have supernatural overtones. Dr. Paige examines both individual and ceremonial songs, which have different backgrounds.

Dr. Paige holds a B.A. from Union College and an M.A. in addition to the Ph.D. from Albany.

The Commission on Accreditation of the Council on Social Work Education voted at its June 12-14 meeting in New York to grant accredited status to the School of Social Welfare, State University of New York at Albany. Dr. Charles T. O'Reilly, dean, expressed "gratitude for the recognition of the high quality of education offered by the school."

The commission commended the school "on its progress, particularly in the recruitment of faculty of recognized stature and competence." The School of Social Welfare began recruiting faculty and developing programs under Dean Richardson L. Rice in June 1964. The first class entered the following fall and graduated in June 1967. This year's graduating class numbered 24 and some 110 students are expected to enroll in September.

The primary purpose of the school is to serve the community by educating social workers capable of providing service and contributing to program development to meet social needs. It offers a two-year program leading to the Master of Social Work degree, two undergraduate courses for upperclassmen, and a variety of educational services on a non-credit basis to practitioners in the community who are interested in improving their practice and broadening their professional knowledge.

Dean O'Reilly said that accreditation will enable the school "to attract more students from a wider area and thus contribute more manpower to private and public agencies. We also are in a better position to attract support from federal granting agencies and foundations," he said.

The United States Office of Education has granted $108,000 for the project "Need and Cost Differentials for Programs of Compensatory Education." The study will be directed by Dr. Arvid J. Burke, professor of educational administration, State University of New York at Albany. He will be assisted by Dr. Martin E. Etters, associate professor of educational administration at the university.

The program is a satellite project of the National Educational Finance Project. The satellite study will involve 10 states, including New York, in a survey of comparative education practices. An attempt will be made to evaluate the trend and to cost out the program. The study, which will run to June 1, 1970, will encompass pre-school classes through the 12th grade in public schools.

The task will be to estimate need, identify exemplary programs, determine cost differentials, and point to additional research in the area of compensatory education for disadvantaged students. The studies, being undertaken by leading educational finance experts at universities across the country, are designed to contribute toward new models of national educational finance to be developed under the National Educational Finance Project, directed by Dr. Roe L. Johns, University of Florida.

The director of the compensatory education study, Dr. Burke has taught at Albany since 1960. He has been a leading figure in New York State education for three decades and was director of research studies for the State Teachers Association from 1936 to 1966. He is considered one of the nation's leading authorities on educational finances. Dr. Burke received his B. A. and M. A. from Albany and his Ed. D. from Teachers College, Columbia University.

Dr. Etters, who holds degrees from Florida State University; Teachers College, Columbia University; and State University of Iowa, joined the Albany faculty last fall.
