FOUR PLAYERS LEAVE UNIVERSITY AT ALBANY MEN'S BASKETBALL TEAM

ALBANY, N.Y. -- Four players on the University at Albany men's basketball team have decided to leave the program, as head coach Richard Sauers announced today. Senior guard Chris Barnes and sophomores Eric LaClair, Brad Hughes and Scott Hughes all cited personal reasons.

"I am extremely disappointed with their decision," said Sauers, who is in his 39th season as Albany's head coach. "In an effort to replace them, we are moving three players from our junior varsity roster up to the varsity. Darrin Jahnel (Schalmont H.S.), Brad Dixon and Rory Doyle all have equal ability to the players we lost but lack experience. We had an inexperienced club to begin the season, and now we just became younger."

Barnes, a 6'0", 170-pound guard, was a starter in seven of 10 games played this season. A transfer from Suffolk County Community College, he was averaging 7.0 points, 2.1 rebounds and 2.0 assists. Barnes, who had also connected on 15-of-30 three-point field goal attempts, was the top reserve on last year's NCAA Tournament team which finished 25-3.

LaClair, who backed up freshman Bob Markel at point guard, appeared in all 10 contests off the bench. He averaged 1.3 points and 1.9 assists. A pair of 6'5" forwards, the Hughes brothers were first-year members of the Albany varsity after playing jayvee basketball as freshmen. Brad averaged 2.0 points and 1.5 rebounds in eight games, while Scott had made just one varsity appearance.

Albany (6-4) entertains Ithaca College this evening at the Recreation & Convocation Center. Tip-off is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.
