David W. Jenks has been appointed director of alumni affairs for State University of New York at Albany. He will begin his new duties on August 1.

Mr. Jenks was graduated from the university in 1964 with a bachelor of science degree in mathematics and physics. Later he earned a Master of Arts in higher education administration at Colgate University. Currently he is working toward a doctorate in counseling psychology.

The future director of alumni affairs leaves a position as associate director of student relations and instructor at Justin Morrill College, a four-year, 'experimental-residential college within Michigan State University. His duties there included coordinating academic advising and external university student services, personal counseling, teaching a course in psychology, and coordinating "sensitivity" groups and seminars on drug use and human sexuality.

Mr. Jenks has held several positions in the area of student residence, including a year each as a graduate residence advisor at Colgate University, assistant director of residence halls at State University of New York at Stony Brook, quadrangle director at Stony Brook, and head resident advisor of Abbott Hall at Michigan State University.

While at State University at Albany Mr. Jenks was a residence assistant and an editor of "State College News". He joined Alpha Pi Alpha fraternity and was elected to the student senate, MYSKANIA, and "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

The position of director of alumni affairs at SUNYA has been vacant for the past year. Elaine Drooz Friedman has been serving as acting alumni director during the interval. She will resume her original duties as research associate in the alumni office.

Some 60 high school students are expected at State University of New York at Albany Sunday, July 5, for College Classics Week, sponsored by the Classical Association of Empire State (CAES). The program is conducted by CAES and the department of classics at SUNYA.

College Classics Week has four specific aims: to present to the students important and relevant aspects of classical civilization; to introduce them to new techniques which may be used in learning and teaching Latin and Greek; to give them a preview of campus life; and to encourage them to pursue a career in the field of the classics.

Special programs include studying the computer as a modern tool of research in the solution of problems in classical scholarship, a filmed dramatization of a Greek lyric chorus, a guided tour through the university's computer center, and an illustrated talk on Roman coins.

Conference coordinators are Anne L. Peterson, instructor of Latin, Niskayuna High School, Schenectady, and chairman of College Classics Week 1970, and Charles F. Graber, assistant professor of education (Latin) at The Milne School, SUNYA.

On the staff of instructors are James B. Colton, chairman, department of foreign languages, Albany Academy; Dr. Robert O. Fink, professor of classics, SUNYA; Richard C. Gascoyne, assistant professor of classics, SUNYA; Dr. Mary G. Goggin, professor of classics and department chairman, SUNYA; Mrs. Harriet S. Norton, associate professor of education (Latin), SUNYA; Dr. Hans A. Pohlsander, associate professor of classics, SUNYA; Sister Anna Roberta, chairman of department of foreign languages, Bishop Scully High School, Amsterdam, and diocesan coordinator of Latin; and Dr. Lois V. Williams, professor of classics, SUNYA.

Michael A. Feit, doctoral fellow at the School of Criminal Justice, State University of New York at Albany and formerly a lecturer in criminology at the university, has been awarded a pilot grant of $9,750 by the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice of the United States Department of Justice. The project supported by the grant is entitled, "Prison Discipline and the Inmate Sense of Injustice".

The work will evaluate and create models for change in the methods of disciplinary controls in prison. The grant received by Mr. Feit is one of 20 awarded nationally to promote research into certain aspects of the criminal justice system.

Mr. Feit intends to use part of the research project to augment his doctoral dissertation which involves a study of the application of "the rule of law" at the post-conviction stages in the criminal justice system.

A graduate of Syracuse University and the University of Chicago Law School, Mr. Feit is admitted to practice before the Bar of the State of New York, United States District Court, the Second Circuit Court of Appeals, and the United States Supreme Court. He has served as counsel for the New York State Office of Planning Coordination and also as chief of the Bureau of Appeals in the Albany County District Attorney's office.

Mr. Feit lives at 311 Parkview Drive, Guilderland, with his wife, the former Diane Zaconick, a teacher at the Rosendale School in Niskayuna.

Conducted by the department of sociology with the support of the university administration, a workshop on human relations for residence assistants has been held this summer at State University of New York at Albany. It was led by Louis Lieberman, assistant professor of sociology, and H. Alan Vermilye, lecturer of sociology.

In attendance were 20 students who have been resident assistants or are scheduled to assume positions in student residences. The workshop, for which graduate credit in sociology was earned, took place at Bleeker Hall on the Dutch Quadrangle.

Participants worked toward the improvement of the process of resolving inter-group and inter-personal problems of human relations as they appear in modern communities. The major focus was on problems and on the resolution of problems in the areas of racial conflict, sexuality, and drug abuse as they are manifested in a university setting.

Class members created group situations/ role situations and analyzed variables in attempts to solve practical and philosophical problems arising from the experiences of the participants themselves and from their perceptions of those problems within the context of university and societal norms. The emphasis was upon practical, tension-reducing solutions, where possible, as well as upon those aspects of problems which have broader intellectual dimensions.

Professor Jack Smith of the department of physics at State University of New York at Albany has been named to the committee developing the proposed new doctor of arts program at the university. The project is supported by a $108,000 grant from the Carnegie Corporation.

Professor Smith will represent the division of science and mathematics. His specialization is mathematical physics, an area of research in which he has taught courses. Dr. Smith was director of the group which did the initial planning for an accelerator facility at SUNYA.

Michael Haines, who is enrolled in the department of curriculum and instruction at Albany, will be working fulltime this summer as a graduate intern and halftime throughout the fall and spring semesters. He is a graduate of Syracuse University.

The doctor of arts project is headed by Arthur N. Collins, professor of English. Serving with him, in addition to Dr. Smith, will be Robert B. Pettingill, department of economics. The three faculty members will serve as the chief operational team.

Three subsidiary, unpaid committees for the major divisions of humanities, sciences and mathematics, and social and behavioral sciences, also will assist. The project is expected to take a year.

July 10, 1970

Home addresses: Professor Smith resides at 1030 Atateka Road, Schenectady, and Mr. Haines is a resident of Guilderland.

More than 2,400 students will attend the 1970 Summer Planning Conference at State University of New York at Albany. The conference, initiated in 1964, will involve seven three-day sessions for freshmen and five two-day orientation periods for transfer students during the weeks of July 1 - August 14.

Dr. Sorrell E. Chesin, assistant vice president / for student affairs, said that the conference is being expanded this year to include a full orientation program for an estimated 1,800 freshmen and 850 transfer students. Mrs. Sue Pierce, residence hall director, is serving as coordinator for the conference.

The program involves faculty, administration, and students. Staff members are responsible for a variety of activities including academic advisement, counseling and discussion sessions, registration, and other official functions. Much of the program is administered and conducted by university students who are selected as conference assistants.

Approximately 240 freshmen will attend each of the seven conference sessions and 125 transfer students will attend each of five transfer sessions. The program includes opportunity for a variety of information social and recreational activities.

There is a special program for parents and guests of students, which includes an opportunity to meet with principal university officials. Neil Brown, director of Campus Center and student activities, and Dr. Robert Morris, dean of the University College, officially welcome parents at the opening convocation. Campus tours also are provided.

Among publications listed in the fall 1970 catalog of State University of New York Press is The Winged Word by State University of New York at Albany professor of comparative literature Harlan Berkley Peabody. The book is a study of ancient Greek oral epic compositional technique.

Previous works in the field had established the fact and mode of oral traditional composition, but an adequate understanding of oral compositional techniques had been largely limited to Slavic contexts. The Winged Word shows how the ancient Greeks composed songs at the speed of speech.

Albert B. Lord, an expert in the field, praises Professor Peabody's book as "a great step forward in making the process of composition and transmission of oral narrative poetry both in ancient Greece and in general terms better understood ... It is one of the most significant books to appear in the field of oral literature research."

Dr. Peabody, who joined the university faculty in 1966, is a graduate of Bowdoin College and holds A.M. and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard University. Before coming to Albany, he taught at Bowdoin and at Moorhead (Minn.) State College. He also is an accomplished organist, a member of the American Guild of Organists, and has held the position of organist at several churches.

The American Academy of Arts and Sciences awarded Dr. Peabody the Monograph Prize in Humanities in 1961 for his thesis "Hesiod's 'Works and Days.'" He has written several articles in the field of literature, in addition to his recent book.

A total of 4,693 students have registered for the 1970 summer session at State University at Albany. The number represents a 10% increase over the 1969 enrollment of 4,251. Figures were made available by Paul A. Saimond, acting director of summer sessions.

Of the total enrollment this summer, 2,481 are graduate students, as compared with 2,363 last year. Forty-five countries are represented by 114 international students at Albany, while some 125 persons are studying in overseas programs conducted by SUNYA. American colleges and universities from Maine to California also are represented at Albany, with 463 undergraduates from other institutions in attendance.

The summer session consists of a pre-session, which has concluded; a regular session, now in progress; and a post-session. Also, two three-week intensive study sessions, currently being conducted, are offered.

Underway at State University of New York at Albany is a state-sponsored institute concerned with the development of creative teaching techniques correlating cinema, drama, and literature for the secondary English teacher. The program, funded by a $10,000 grant from the In-Service Bureau of the State Education Department, is being held for 31 participants in Richardson Hall through August 7.

William Kraus, associate professor of English at SUNYA, is director of the institute being attended by junior and senior high school teachers from parochial and public, central and urban schools. Others on the faculty are Frances Hodge, assistant professor, literature, and Richard Weeks, instructor, drama. Both are also with SUNYA.

Gerald Noxon, professor of film and director of film studies at Boston University, is instructing in cinema. He has had a long and distinguished career in cinema art. Film production credits include National Film Board of Canada; major radio and television networks in Great Britain, Canada, and United States; and CBS Workshop, School of the Air, and Studio One.

Professor Noxon now is continuing research into pictorial and literary origins of cinema narrative.

Rodney A. Hart has been named director of admissions at State University of New York at Albany. Mr. Hart, who joined the university staff as an admissions counselor in August 1965, was promoted to assistant director in July 1966 and to associate director in September 1968.

In commenting on his new position Mr. Hart said, "My first thrust will be toward developing the public relations aspect of the admissions office. All too often the student, his parents, and even the university community here do not understand the admissions policies. Some people rely greatly on rumors which are always around, especially at an institution which is becoming increasingly competitive."

He continued, "We would hope to have the time and staff necessary to effectively counsel prospective applicants and to discuss alternate educational plans with those who are not accepted. A great deal of our work will involve the counseling and accommodating, when possible, of returning servicemen, and efforts will be made to further identify those subjective criteria which might strengthen the validity of an admissions decision."

Mr. Hart added that several changes in staffing have taken place in the undergraduate admissions office. There now are two assistant directors and three admissions counselors.

R. Thomas Flemming, assistant director for freshmen, joined the staff in September 1967 as admissions counselor. He is a native of Newburgh who received his bachelor's and master's degrees in the social sciences at SUNYA. Mr. Flemming taught history at Cornwall Central Central School before coming to Albany where he resides.

Returning to the staff after a year's leave of absence is Patrick A. Foti of Schenectady. Mr. Foti will have complete responsibility for the admission and academic orientation of transfer students. He is completing a program at SUNYA leading to the doctorate in education, specializing in guidance and personnel services.

Mrs. Bettye Zeringue of Troy will replace Robert Suggs, admissions counselor, who is on a one-year leave of absence for doctoral studies. Mrs. Zeringue will be responsible for coordination of admission to the Educational Opportunities Program which is designed to admit selected students with varying cultural and social backgrounds and limited financial resources to a program of academic, financial, and counseling services.

Mrs. Zeringue was most recently employed as a vocational counselor for the Rensselaer County Neighborhood Youth Corps. She is a native of Chicago and a graduate of Southern University in New Orleans where she majored in psychology.

Also an admissions counselor is Carolyn King, of Delmar. In 1969 Miss King was awarded a Master of Arts in special education from the University of Connecticut. She has an undergraduate degree from State University in Buffalo where she specialized in exceptional education. Miss King has taught for the Board of Cooperative Educational Services in Albany and also has had experience with the academic counseling of students and their parents.

The other admissions counselor is Anita Nancy Avakian. Miss Avakian was graduated from Manhattanville College in Purchase with the degree Bachelor of Music. She also studied at the Paris Conservatory and at the State University of New York at Albany where she received a Master of Science. She is completing Albany course work for her doctorate in education with specialization in educational administration.

Director of Admissions -3-

Most recently Miss Avakian was a technical assistant to the Provost of the State University Central Office. Previously she had worked at the State Education Department. She also has taught music at East Greenbush Junior High School and the Colonie Village School.

The new admissions director, Mr. Hart, has bachelor's and master's degrees from SUNYA with specialization in Spanish. He taught five years in the Guilderland Central School System. Mr. Hart resides at 16 Robert Drive, Colonie, with his wife, Maris, and their three children, Todd, Hilary, and Chad. Mrs. Hart recently was elected to the South Colonie Board of Education.

Mr. Hart is a member of the New York State and Capital District Personnel and Guidance associations, the National Association of Foreign Students Affairs, and the American Association for Higher Education. Also, he is the institutional voting representative for the College Entrance Examination Board. He is a member of the statewide State University Professional Association and is on the board of directors of the Albany university chapter of State University Professional Association. For the past year Mr. Hart has consulted State University of New York Office of Foreign Faculty and Student Programs on the evaluation of European academic credentials.

Editors, please note: A resident of your circulation area is participating in one of the international study programs conducted by State University of New York at Albany.

IMMEDIATE

Participation in the broadened international study programs conducted by State University of New York at Albany is increasing. Currently, nearly one hundred are enrolled in one semester or full year study programs conducted in Singapore, Wurzburg, Nice, and Guadalajara.

International study is conducted under the jurisdiction of the Albany university's College of Arts and Sciences at all levels of the undergraduate program. The college places strong emphasis upon the international dimensions in all branches of learning, in the natural and social sciences as well as in the humanities. The philosophy underlying international education in the College of Arts and Sciences is that study at the university level mandates a cross-cultural approach and that international education, therefore, is indigenous to all of the arts and sciences.

Thirteen students are in the program at Nanyang University, Singapore; 20 at the University of Wurzburg, West Germany, 43 at the University of Nice, France, and 17 at the University of Guadalajara in Mexico. The latter program is for one semester only each year.

Additionally there are summer programs in Canada, England, France, Germany, Italy, Portugal, Puerto Rico, and Spain.

The School of Criminal Justice, State University of New York at Albany, has moved from Pierce Hall on the downtown campus to new quarters in the lower level of the library building on the academic podium of the main campus. The relocation is one of several now underway at the university and affecting schools, clinics, centers, and offices. Entrance to the new location of the School of Criminal Justice is at the south side of the library, between the University Library and the Humanities Building.

The Northeastern New York Speech Center, Formerly located at Draper on the downtown campus is now on the first floor of Husted, also on the older campus. Moved also from Draper, to the first floor of Richardson, has been the Reading Clinic.

This week the Learning Disabilities Center was moved from Draper to the first floor of Husted. Earlier Faculty-Student Association had moved its office from Draper to the Executive Tower at Stuyvesant Plaza.

In other changes, the office of State University of New York Central Administration machine services was moved from the first floor of Draper to the lower level, and the lease providing six class rooms for Albany High School at Draper has been cancelled.

Currently the "old" Draper building and Draper annex are being readied for occupancy by the Graduate School of Public Affairs and the School of Social Welfare now located at Sayles Hall on the downtown campus. Both schools are slated to be moved on Aug. 17, leaving the buildings clear for reconversion to residence space for about 240 students beginning Aug. 29.

Hawley library has been renovated to accommodate the GSPA library. Books will be moved there from the library at Pierce at the end of the summer session.

Social Welfare will be located on the first and second floors at the western side of Draper and GSPA will occupy the remainder of the building. The schools will share classrooms.

Social Welfare field units, an extension of the School of Social Welfare, remain at Richardson. The Center for Economic Education moves from Draper to first floor Richardson. Additionally, other small research offices will be moved from Draper to Richardson. Some rooms of the Milne School will be shifted around but the school will have the same amount of space in Richardson, although on a different floor. The school continues to have science classrooms and laboratories on the second floor of Husted.

David Fotheringham, director of university systems analysis with a major assignment in space studies, commented that there has been a basic problem in arranging for the accommodation of some 200 additional staff, including 100 faculty. Also, space has had to be found for new projects and programs. Another problem has been the delay in the completion of Indian Quadrangle.

The fourth annual Adult Basic Education (ABE) Institute on Curriculum Development is being held at State University of New York at Albany through August 7. The institute is supported by a $94,000 grant from the U. S. Office of Education for the purpose of training curriculum leaders and developers for ABE.

Nearly 80 participants are on campus from some 39 states, including representatives from as far as Alaska, Hawaii, California, Montana, and Oregon; as well as from Washington D. C., and Puerto Rico. Most of them are residing at the State Quadrangle. They are involved in such discussion areas as "Implementing Curriculum Change," "Consumer Education," and "Political Socialization." The speaker at the final banquet on August 6 will be Dr. Bernard Haake, assistant commissioner for instructional services in general education, State Education Department.

The overall objective of the training institute is to prepare experienced ABE personnel who are in positions to implement curriculum development and change in ABE programs currently operating in urban areas of the United States. The institute includes 17 consultants, from the immediate area and from throughout the country; and nine panelists, all from the Albany area. Dr. John A. Ether, SUNYA professor of curriculum and instruction, is project director, while program director is Anthony R. Pacelli, ABE research specialist, School of Education.

Joseph F. Zacek, associate professor of history, State University of New York at Albany, is currently involved in several off-campus professional activities. Among them is serving as an American consultant to Dr. Jaroslav Kubat, managing editor of the SVOBODA Publishing House, Prague, responsible for screening and recommending American publications in history and the social sciences for translation into Czech and for overseeing the translation process.

Dr. Zacek also serves on a panel of eight American scholars who advise Donald Treadgold, editor of the Slavic Review, on East European scholarly publications to be reviewed in that journal. Specifically, he screens and submits works published in Czechoslovakia in the fields of social science and humanities, especially history.

In addition, the historian serves as consultant to the Slavic Bibliographic and Documentation Center, Washington D.C. The center will publish a serial guide to the selection and acquisition of current Slavic publications by American libraries. There, too, Dr. Zacek will screen and select Czech titles in the social sciences and humanities.

Within the past several years, Dr. Zacek also has had several of his own works published, including "Nationalism in Czechoslovakia," a chapter in Nationalism in Eastern Europe (University of Wisconsin Press, 1969); a new introduction to the second edition of Robert J. Kerner's Bohemia in the 18th Century (Academic International, 1969); "Palacky: A Marxist Portrait," in Czechoslovakia, Past and Present (Mouton & Co., The Hague); and "History: Czechoslovakia," a section in Language and Area Studies, East Central and South-eastern Europe: A Survey (University of Chicago Press, 1969).

Dr. Zacek holds bachelor's, master's, and doctoral degrees from the University of Illinois. He was assistant professor of history at the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA), before coming to Albany in 1968.

Listed in the fall 1970 catalog of the State University of New York Press is The Philosophy of Chrysippus by Josiah B. Gould, Jr., associate professor of philosophy, State University at Albany. Dr. Gould is in his second year at the university.

The book is a reconstruction of the philosophy of an eminent Stoic philosopher, based on the fragmentary remains of his voluminous writings. Chrysippus of Cilicia lived during approximately the last three-quarters of the third century B.C. He studied in Athens and became the third head of the Stoa, one of the four great schools of philosophy of the Hellenistic period.

Dr. Gould works from the assumption that only those doctrines specifically ascribed to Chrysippus can be used to reconstruct his philosophy. He thus emerges with a clear account of Chrysippus' views in the fields of logic, natural philosophy, and ethics. In order that his thought may be viewed in context, Gould also provides a background picture in which Chrysippus worked. Additionally, an account of Chrysippus' life and reputation in antiquity, as well as a description of modern assessments of his position in the Stoa, are included.

The author is a graduate of Lynchburg (Va.) College and holds advanced degrees from Florida State University (M. A.) and the Johns Hopkins University (Ph.D). Prior to coming to Albany, Dr. Gould had taught at the University of California Santa Cruz, Claremont (Cal.) Graduate School, the Rockefeller Institute, and the American University.

More than 2,400 students will attend the 1970 Summer Planning Conference at State University of New York at Albany. The conference, initiated in 1964, will involve seven three-day sessions for freshmen and five two-day orientation periods for transfer students during the weeks of July 1 - August 14.

Dr. Sorrell E. Chesin, assistant vice president / for student affairs, said that the conference is being expanded this year to include a full orientation program for an estimated 1,800 freshmen and 850 transfer students. Mrs. Sue Pierce, residence hall director, is serving as coordinator for the conference.

The program involves faculty, administration, and students. Staff members are responsible for a variety of activities including academic advisement, counseling and discussion sessions, registration, and other official functions. Much of the program is administered and conducted by university students who are selected as conference assistants.

Approximately 240 freshmen will attend each of the seven conference sessions and 125 transfer students will attend each of five transfer sessions. The program includes opportunity for a variety of information social and recreational activities.

There is a special program for parents and guests of students, which includes an opportunity to meet with principal university officials. Neil Brown, director of Campus Center and student activities, and Dr. Robert Morris, dean of the University College, officially welcome parents at the opening convocation. Campus tours also are provided.
